a documentary project
BY CADY MCCLAIN

Seeing Is Believing: Women Direct is a documentary film, short film, and web-series created by Cady McClain. Inviting viewers into a unique and intimate conversation with women who are on the front lines of the film and television directing field, each program shares how these remarkable women successfully drive through creative, cultural, and professional obstacles in order to be the best leader she can be.

Seeing Is Believing: Women Direct recently won the Audience Award for Best Feature at the SoHo International Film Festival in July 2017.

Notable directors including Lesli Linka Glatter (Homeland), Sarah Gavron (Suffragette), and Kimberly Pierce (Boys Don't Cry), and as well as good guys like Executive Producer and director John Wells (ER, West Wing) and EP Michael Robin (Major Crimes, Nip/Tuck) share their wisdom as we hear stories about the journey of becoming a successful director from women at all stages of the profession.

McClain's experience making the film was recently covered by Salon.com, as well as by CBS, PBS, IndieWire, Women and Hollywood, and The Alliance of Women Film Journalists.

McClain is the 2017 recipient of the International Matrix Award by the Association of Women in Communications, which she will accept at the organization's 2017 national conference in Dallas.

Seeing Is Believing: Women Direct is currently available for special presentations to educational institutions, conferences, and other special events. The film (either at 30 or 60 mins) can be screened in conjunction with a personal appearance by Ms. McClain, who will discuss how women can become great leaders and overcome any obstacle, whatever their career path may be.
